

Liners

Liners are a pouch closed on three sides, with rounded corners and open at the top, with no handles, and with exposed edges on the outside of the pouch to avoid irritating the joey and stop the joeys chewing the seams. X small to med liners should be made from flannelette or fleecy material, thicker material for smaller liners and thinner material for larger liners with large and X large usually made from strong cotton

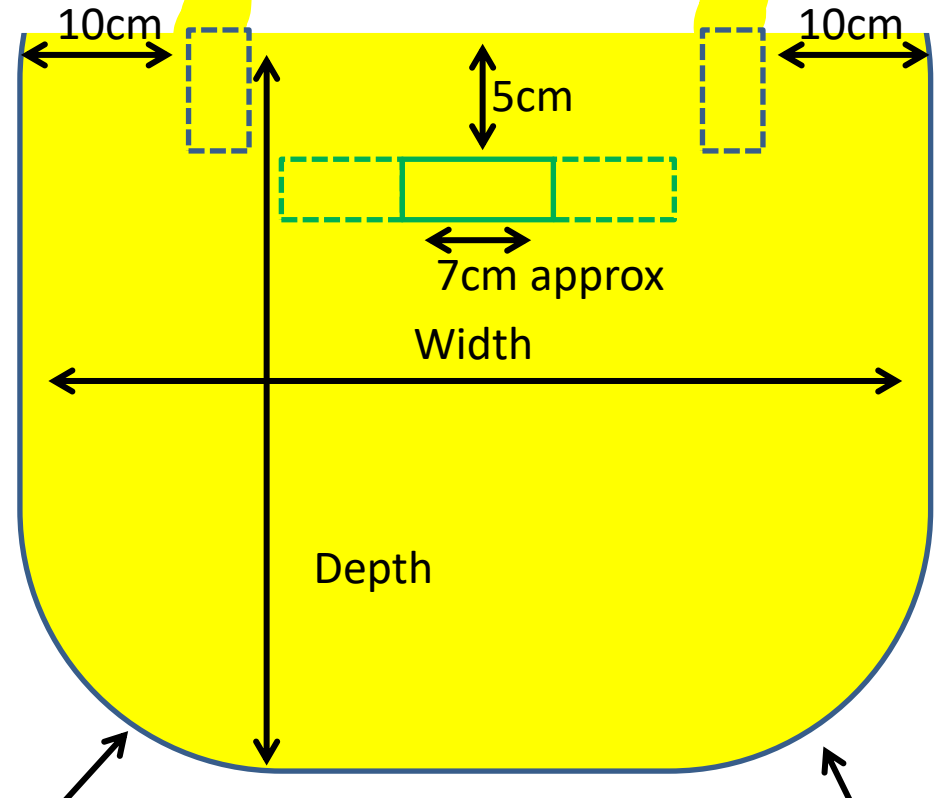

Size	Width	Depth
X small	35cm	40cm
Small	45cm	50cm
Med	50cm	55cm
Large	55cm	60cm
X large	60cm	65cm

Bottom corners need to be rounded to ensure joeys do not get stuck in the corner

Bags (option 1)

bags are closed on three sides, with rounded corners and open at the top and should be made from double layer heavier material (e.g. Donner covers). Side and bottom seams should be turned in between the two layers. Bags should have two 90cm long strap handles sewn on the top edge of the back of the bag, double stitched between the layers, approx 10cm in from the bag edges, to allow the bag to lean open at the front. Plus a horizontal "belt loop" approx. 7cm wide, on the opposite side to the handles (i.e. front) approx. 5cm from the top, to allow the handles to pass through the loop. This is used to close the bag when travelling in a car by passing the handles through the loop and tying the handles over a car headrest.

Size	Width	Depth
X small	40cm	40cm
Small	50cm	50cm
Med	55cm	50cm
Large	65cm	55cm
X large	80cm	55cm

Bags (option 2)

Some of our careers use a bag with two looped handles, particularly if they have to transport their joeys often, e.g. taking them to work each day. Each loop is approx 70cm long. These are principally a dedicated travel bag and the two loops are looped over a headrest in a car to secure the joey when travelling. The specification for both type of bags are the same and the only difference is the handles. No front belt loop is required on this type of bag.
